

Diamondhead's vision of the future

BY TRACI BONNEY
Diamondhead's past, present and future will be brought into focus Thursday as the community commemorates two decades of existence with "20/20 — A Vision of Diamondhead." Program spokesperson Clarisse Gustin said the party celebrating Diamondhead's 20th anniversary will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Diamondhead Country Club. Mississippi Republican Party Chairman Evelyn McPhail will emcee the event, and Dave Walters will entertain. Hors d'oeuvres and beverages will be available. There will be a $6-per-person charge for the food, and an additional charge for beverages. Gustin said several "firsts" will be recognized — first homeowner, first condominium owner, first business people, among others. She added that Sen. Trent Lott and other state and local dignitaries have been invited to attend. Diamondhead began as a community in 1970, when property sales were initiated, but its success as a resort community has been recognized only recently. According to a history of the community, residential and commercial growth in Diamondhead over the past five years have made the area a full-service community and have caused many to wonder why Diamondhead does not move to become a city. Diamondhead has approximately 1,400 single family DIAMONDHEAD—Page 2A

Ex-patrolman tells his story

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Rene Normand, a former patrolman on the Waveland Police Department, does not find Mayor Stella Frilot to be "fair." Normand, in an unsolicited interview at the Sea Coast Echo Friday, stated that the "complaints" for which he was fired were nothing more than grievances voiced by disgruntled violators of the law, with whom he had dealings while performing his duty, during the previous administration. He added that no member of the Frilot family was involved in the incidents which led to the grievances. Normand, who served for three years in the department, and Investigator Robert "Poochie" Tartavouille, a 16-year veteran of the force, were fired approximately 24 hours after Frilot took office. He said he received a letter which "stated something to the effect that my dismissal was for the better interest of the city of Waveland." "In essence, the complaints she (Frilot) referred to in Sun Herald and Sea Coast Echo articles, were from another administration." At the time of those complaints, continued Normand, "I was called in and had to answer them. I heeded his (Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn) words, and did as I was told. 'I don't understand how something from a past administration, that was handled by that administration, could be used against me now.' According to city attorney Lucien Gex, the city charter of Waveland gives the mayor the power to hire or fire any city employee, except department heads, without consulting the board of aldermen, and without naming a cause for the dismissal. "I got fired by a piece of paper," said Normand. "She could have at least called me in, presented the complaints and let me answer them. 'How can you make a fair decision without hearing the other side?' 'I do not dispute her authority as mayor to do what she has done. I do feel her reasons are NORMAN—Page 3A

Gambling, and all that jazz

Community rife with rumors, but answers are hard to find

BY TRACI BONNEY
So far, rumors concerning the possible purchase of Pete Fountain's Hwy. 90 beachfront property for a gambling facility site are unsubstantiated, according to Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre. When asked if he were involved in any way with negotiations between the famous

New Orleans jazz musician and Mardi Gras Casino Corp. for the property, Favre replied, "Absolutely not." In addition, he continued, he has yet to see any concrete proof on the corporation's part that it is interested in locating a gaming operation on the property at the foot of the Bay St. Louis bridge.

Further, Favre concluded, no applications for zoning variances in connection with potential dockside gambling operations have been filed by Mardi Gras Casino Corp. or any other company. Lenny Sawyer of Sawyer Real Estate in Gulfport, who is reported to be negotiating on behalf of Mardi Gras Casino for an option on the property, said he was not involved in the matter. When specifically asked if he were negotiating for an option on the property, he referred the question to Mardi Gras Casino Corp. executives Don and Jase Tyner in Ocean Springs. Neither one could be reached for comment by Friday.

Cash flow slow on Farve house

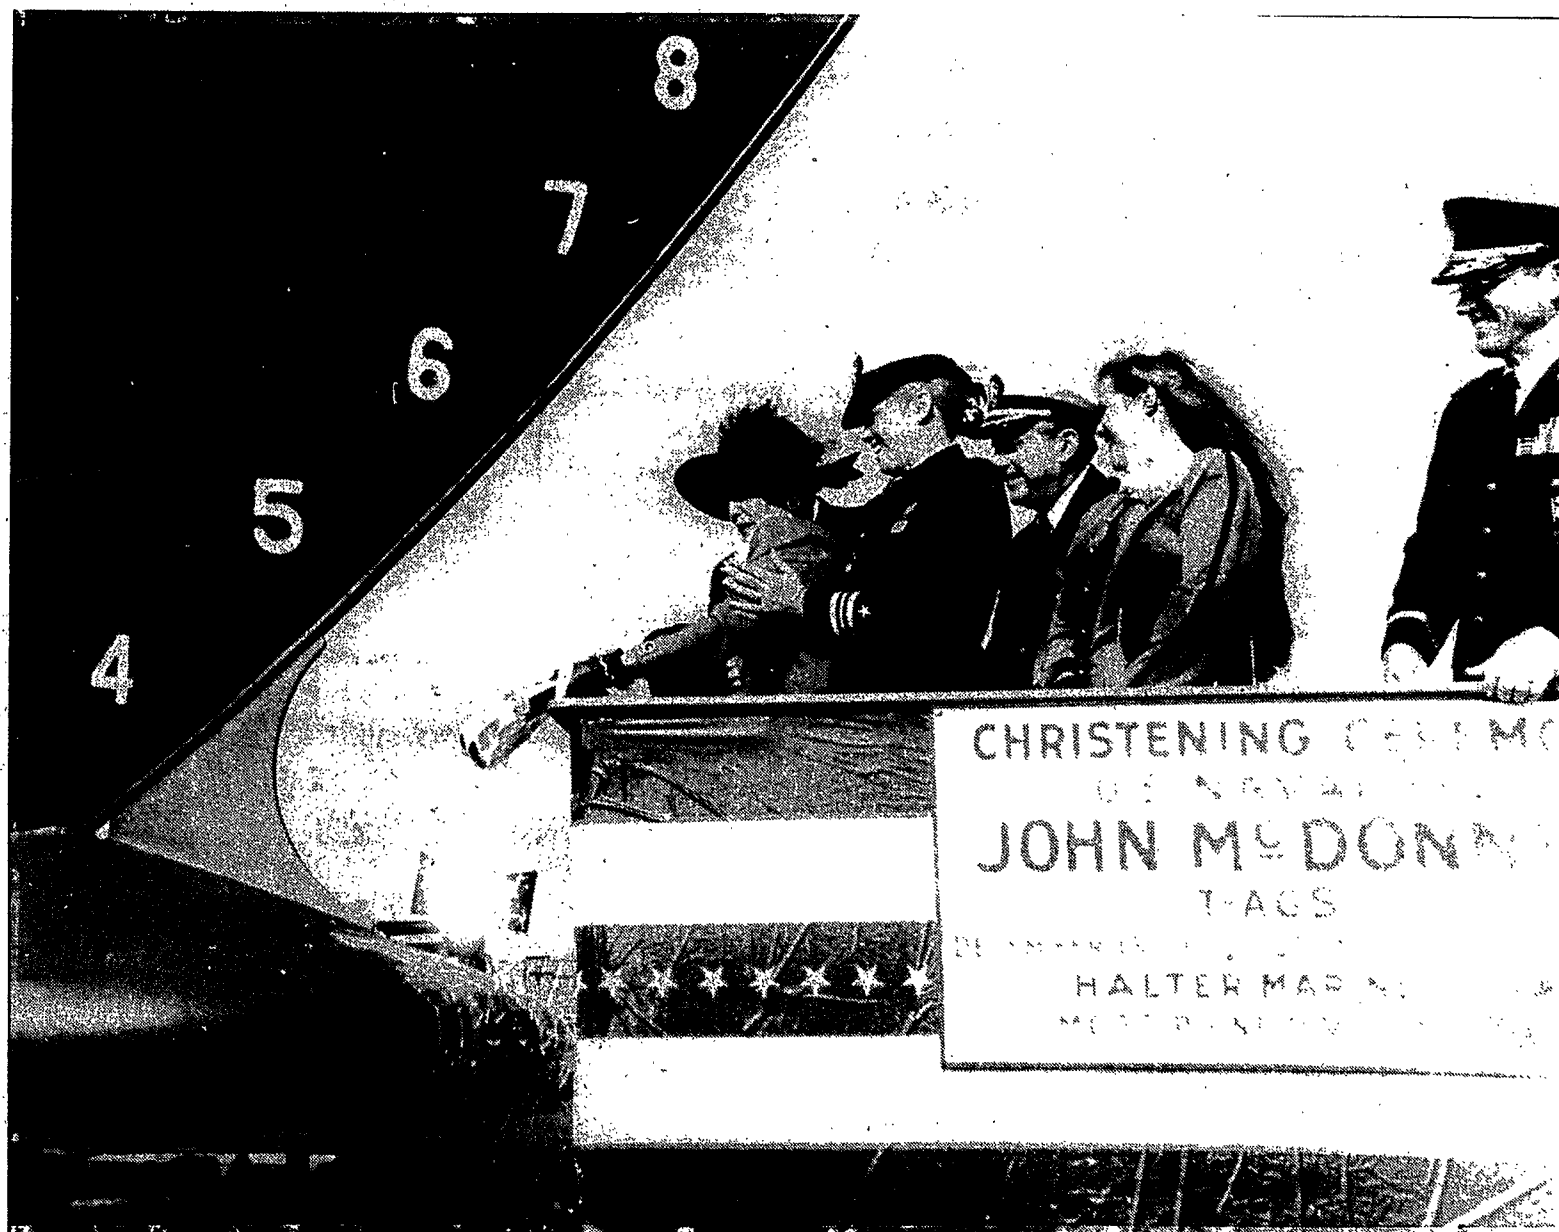

BY TRACI BONNEY
Geraldine Lang got the help she was seeking. Now she needs money. Lang, a member of Concerned Citizens of Hancock County, recently sent out a plea for donated labor to help rebuild the Morgan Park house of Dennis and Laura Farve. She received the help she needed for the slab pouring and other work. However, funds are becoming a source of distress. "What I'm running out of is cash," she said. "We need about $1,400 right now for lumber, paneling, insulation, sheetrock and other materials. "We have some people that are working with us, and if we can get the money for the materials we can keep going." A July article in The Sea Coast Echo stated that Concerned Citizens of Hancock County had come to the aid of the Farves, whose house was in danger of being condemned. Lang said at that time the house might have to be torn down and rebuilt. The Farves are 71 and 64 years old and have three of their four children living with them (one of them is mentally handicapped). While the Farves temporarily live in public housing, volun-

Hancock United Way surpasses 1990 goal

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
The United Way of Hancock County has reached and surpassed its goal of $110,000 for the 1990 campaign in reports provided by the United Way of South Mississippi on Friday. Hancock is the first of the three counties participating in the United Way campaign within South Mississippi to exceed its goal this year. Tim Ryan Hancock County's campaign chairman, is elated over Friday reports at $118,578 in pledges and contributions, for a percentage of 107.8. Ryan said, "I am pleased with the returns and I know there are still several reports out. There are tremendous needs within our community this year." The United Way of South Mississippi for Hancock, Pearl River and Harrison has $1,067,456 in pledges and contributions, 97% of the 1990 campaign goal. Pearl River has raised $93,306, which is 98.2% of goal and Harrison County $855,572, 95.5% of its goal. "Our campaign has been successful only because of the hard work of so many during this campaign, and of course the pledges and donations by the many citizens of our county," Ryan stated.

Teen awaits grand jury

Travis B. White, the 17-year-old Kiln resident charged with capital murder in the October shooting death of Bay St. Louis cab driver Leon Howard "Wally" Wallace, was bound over to the grand jury after a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Hancock County Justice Court Judge Lee Klein decided after nearly six hours of testimony that there was sufficient evidence to present the case to the grand jury, which will meet the second Monday in January.

If indicted, White could be tried as an adult. If convicted, he faces a potential death penalty.

County not responsible for damage to resident's car

BY TRACI BONNEY
The evidence is in — at this time, the county can not take responsibility for damage to Shirlene Zoerner's car. Zoerner, a Bay Side Park resident, asked the Hancock County Board of Supervisors at its December 3 meeting to compensate her for transmission damage supposedly incurred when she ran over a piece of concrete on a little-used county road. Zoerner said high grass concealed the rock and she didn't know it was in the road until she had run over it. Supervisor Robert Peterson asked the board at that meeting to consider the matter before making a decision.

At a workshop meeting Thursday morning, the board discussed the incident with Road Superintendent Sam Cuevas and Assistant Road Superintendent Tommy Moran. Moran displayed photographs he took the day he received the complaint, which he said was one or two days after the incident occurred.

The photos indicated that the grass had been recently cut and did not conceal the rock. Furthermore, the pictures showed the rock to be closer to the side of the road than the middle, and therefore avoidable.

Moran also said he measured the piece of concrete. "It's about four or 4 1/2 inches high and nine inches long. A car would have to be really low for that rock to do the kind of damage she says it did," he said.

Moran and Cuevas said they don't think Zoerner lied about hitting the rock, but they aren't sure it damaged the transmission.

Peterson said he thinks the board members need documented proof that the rock did indeed cause the transmission damage before they can consider the idea of the county's being responsible for the damage.

Cuevas said he will review the matter with board attorney Gerald Gex before recommending anything to the board.

The board also discussed other matters at the workshop meeting, including architectural details and moving plans for the new county multi-purpose building.

Holiday closings

Waveland

Waveland's City Hall will be closed for both the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Monday, Dec. 24, Tuesday, Dec. 25, Monday, Dec. 31 and Tuesday, Jan. 1.

Lasers: Magic or Medicine?

While you may have heard a lot of talk about lasers lately, it's important to know all the facts. When used properly by skilled physicians, you can see amazing results from laser surgery: less damage to surrounding tissue, faster healing, less pain, and reduced cost. But it's important to remember that only your doctor can advise you whether a laser procedure is appropriate for you.

Thirty-four surgeons at Memorial Hospital at Gulfport currently perform laser procedures ranging from gall bladder removal, to infertility cases in which fallopian tubes are opened or reconstructed, to removal of superficial cancers, to repair of the retina in the eye.

For more information about laser surgery, contact your physician or for a physician referral call Memorial M.D. at 865-DOCS (3627).

It was a great occasion Thursday for a Hancock County family with the christening of the USNS Captain John McDonnell at Moss Point's Halter Marine Shipyard.

I was delighted to see so many friends of John McDonnell in attendance, and I know his family was proud to see them, too.

I could see the delight in the faces of Mrs. McDonnell and their four children as the ship was christened, and they know that their husband and father will long be remembered in the annals of the United States Navy and Oceanography.

McDonnell was the first commander of the newly formed Naval Oceanography Command comprising more than 50 weather and oceanographic commands worldwide, 12 oceanographic ships, and a squadron of specially equipped airplanes.

A resident of Diamondhead, he was involved with the moving of the command from Maryland to the test site in Hancock County.

Capt. McDonnell, in addition to his military tasks, was concerned with his community as well and made several important contributions.

He was one of the leading forces of the Hancock County Jail Task Force, a group of the community's leaders who helped pass the bond issue for the construction of our most modern Criminal Justice Facility.

He retired just a short time before his death in 1984, which left the Navy and community saddened.

The witnessing of the christening of a ship in person by me was a new experience. It is something I will always remember and the person whose proud name the ship bears. I will always remember him as the great man he was.

John McDonnell's life was for God, his family, United States Navy, his fellowmen and country.

Brenda meets the Bah Humbug blues

All of us trapped in the traffic snarls, the bulging crowds, and the never-ending parade of panic-stricken shoppers face the threat of having our Christmas celebration turn into little more than Bah Humbug holidays.

Those snarls, bulges and panic parades make a few warm smiles and friendly faces stand out even more. Thankfully, warm smiles and friendly faces can, and often do, melt away the Bah Humbug blues and restore the cheerful atmosphere of the season.

Fortunately, such friendly faces—with warm smiles and a happy spirit—do exist in Mississippi.

Just like the glowing young gift wrapper in the Mississippi department store who a few days ago—in the rush hour of holiday shipping—patiently collected and packaged several gifts for an elderly, overburdened, and appreciative little woman.

Then the gift wrapper excused herself from her counter and carried the bundle of brightly adorned gifts to the parking lot with the shopper in need.

She was back in a flash. An extra measure of goodwill from the event—not a customer in line objected to the gift wrapper's quick trip to the parking lot with the customer in need. They were all there when she returned to the counter—the warm smile still filling her friendly face.

The next time you're at Brenda Adcock's counter, have her wrap your gifts—she's a talented gift-wrapping artist.

And, thank her for helping the elderly woman, and for making Christmas a little brighter for so many trapped in the snarls, the bulges, and the parades of panic-stricken people.

A letter from "Home"

Special to the Echo by Specialist Tommy Bergeron

Hello from Fort Rucker, Alabama. Just wanting to say hi to all the families of members in the 1355th unit of Bay St. Louis and to the citizens of Hancock County.

We are doing fine. Though the days are long, we are surviving it. We all miss home and our families and hope to return safe and soon.

We have been busy for being here only a week. We've been training very hard. Doing PT, classes on NBC (Nuclear, Biological, Chemical) warfare, rifle qualification, first aid, and desert survival are some of our activities.

I thank God for my unit and the men and women that are part of it. I couldn't be around a better group of people that dedicate themselves in getting our missions accomplished. Being only 19, I'm thankful for the people who served time in Vietnam and have experience in a situation like this. I know I can count on them, I just hope I can assure them that I'm here for them to count on me.

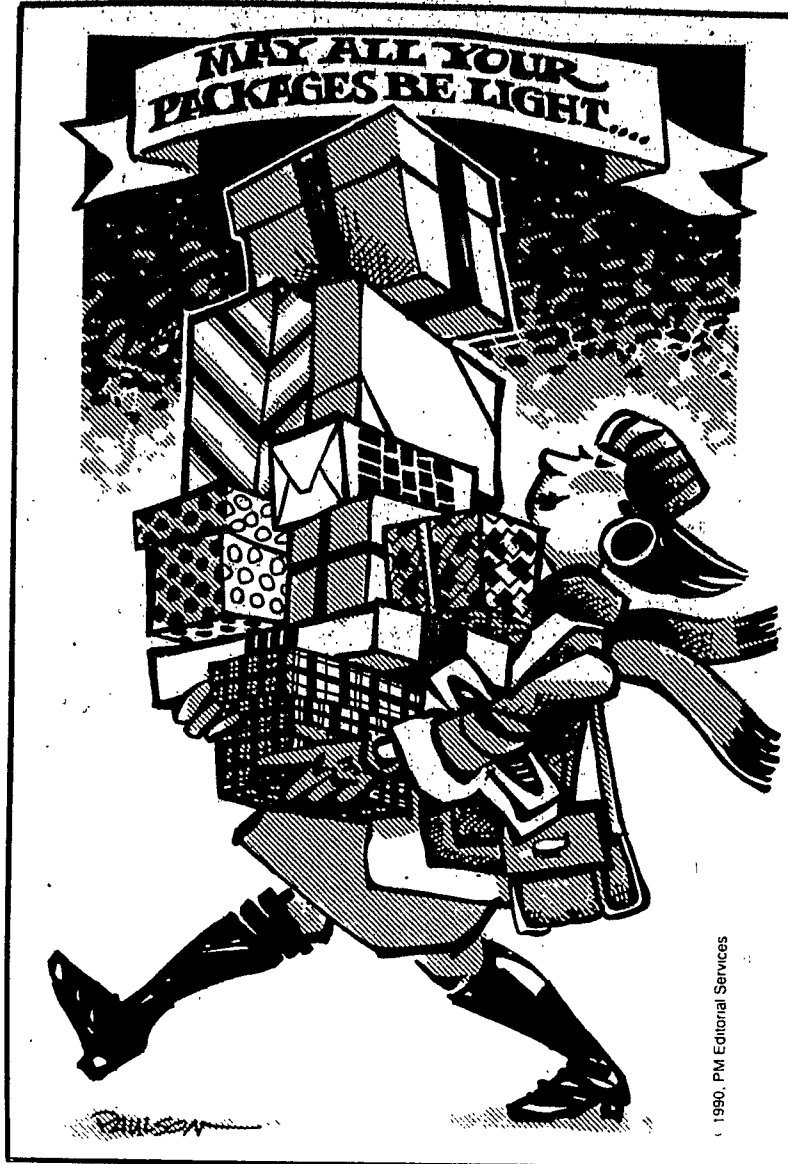

Also our fellow comrades from the 1355th in Ocean

SPECIALIST BERGERON

Springs. Once again a fine group of people and we are proud to have them working along side of us.

Though our next mission and destination are unknown, we pray that we'll be home soon. We know we can accomplish our mission and do whatever it takes to come back safe and sound. One thing we ask is to keep the 1355th in your prayers and don't lose faith.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

MMA's longtime director may be replaced

A split in the Mississippi Municipal Association stemming from discontent over the 283-city organization's apparent ineffective representation before the Legislature was expected to end in the firing of the MMA's longtime executive director.

The MMA board of directors was slated to meet in Jackson at mid-week to decide the fate of Pat Dunne, the former Greenville mayor, who has been the municipal association's executive director the past 14 years.

Two weeks ago a sudden move to oust Dunne was shunted aside by Greenwood Mayor Louis Fancher, the MMA president, after association leaders received an in-depth four-year audit which revealed thousands of dollars of unsupported expenses charged to the MMA by Dunne.

Among other things, the audit showed that Dunne had charged approximately $80,000 on an American Express card for travel and entertainment in the four years ending Sept. 30, 1990 while only about $43,000 was attributable to specific association events.

The audit listed the dates and establishments ranging from restaurants to liquor stores at which credit card charges were made by Dunne, but the audit summary said "no additional information of who was entertained or business purpose" was provided by him.

What makes the business of the MMA of special public interest is the fact that the association is supported in large part by tax dollars paid into the MMA as dues from cities and towns which are members.

While Dunne had told MMA leaders at last month's board meeting that some of the money he had spent was for entertaining legislators, no expenses were attributed by Dunne to lobbying. It was revealed, meanwhile, that Dunne was never registered with the secretary of state as a lobbyist.

Dunne maintained that all the expenses questioned in the audit had been for the benefit of the MMA. "Nobody can show, nor have they, that I misappropriated any money," Dunne said last week.

"I have been concerned that the association was less than effective with the Legislature for some years, and now after I saw the audit report, it has reinforced what I already believed," said Mayor Kenny Dill of West Point, who has been a member of the MMA for 18 years.

Dill said that the municipal association should be operated "on the same basis of accountability for expenses as we are in city government, but when you look at the audit, you can't sell that back home."

Dunne tried to blame the endangerment of his job mostly on Jackson Mayor Kane Ditto, whom he charged "has promised my job to somebody else, and the only way he could do it was to try and destroy my credibility."

Ditto openly admitted he wanted Dunne replaced, but he said that "it is ridiculous that I had somebody in mind."

In the two years he has served in the Legislature before he was elected Jackson's mayor last year, Ditto said "my observation was that the cities were very ineffective in getting their message over to the Legislature and Pat Dunne hasn't done a good job."

The association, Ditto said, "needs a real professional in that job, and it should advertise nationally or do whatever it takes to get one."

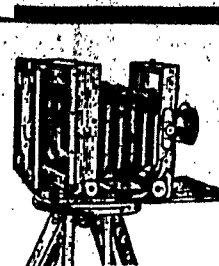

Mayor Mary Hawkins, the feisty mayor of Madison, who was elected vice-president of the MMA in June and is on track to become the association's first woman president in two years, triggered the request for the four-year in-depth audit of the association accounts at the September meeting of the MMA executive committee.

Hawkins said the move to oust Dunne had reached its peak when it was discovered that Dunne had made an advance payment of $5,000 to Butler Services, a lobbying brokerage firm owned by former State Sen. Louis Fortenberry of Pascagoula, after the MMA board had voted in September to rescind a lobbying contract with Butler authorized the previous month.

The contract with Fortenberry, whom one mayor called a "drinking buddy of Pat's," was not scheduled to begin until October. Dunne who said he had recommended Fortenberry as a consultant to the MMA "because he is very knowledgeable about the Legislature" added that "Louis and I may have talked about these matters over a drink."

Mayor Hawkins said she had done some digging into the background of Butler Services and found it was not registered as a lobby group with the secretary of state's office.

But it is registered with the Mississippi Manufacturers Association as an environmental consultant. "I believe it has ties with one company that is in the waste management business," she said. Dunne denied that Butler was connected with any one waste company.

Both Bay High soccer teams, junior varsity and varsity lost to Long Beach during a home game Friday night.

The varsity team scored 3 points to Long Beach's 5 points. The junior varsity fared worst with only 1 point to Long Beach's 6 points.

Trent Favre, a captain on the Bay High varsity team scored two goals. Both scores came with assistance, one from Scott Barnes and one from Joe Dobson.

Dobson scored a goal on his own when given a penalty kick.

Coast sets school point record in win

The Coast Episcopal Raiders scored a school record 107 points in the opening round of the Riverside Tournament, and easily overcame previously undefeated Calvary of Baton Rouge 107-54.

Senior Bruce Hull and freshman Tyrone Jones combined for 77 points as the Raiders ran their record to 11-4 on the season.

Jones connected on 11 of 13 three point shots, while Hull hit on 19 of 25 shots from the floor. The Raiders shot 71 percent from the floor, connecting on 41 of 59 attempts. They also hit 11 of 13 free throw attempts.

The Raiders led 19-8 after one period, then exploded for 38 second quarter points as Jones connected on six three-pointers in the quarter. He nailed nine of his 11 three-pointers in the first half.

The 107 points marked the first time ever the Raiders have gone over the century mark, and the 38 second quarter points were also the most ever scored in one quarter.

"Calvary came into the game with a 9-0 record and were really playing well," said Raider coach Jack Hutchison. "We knew it was going to take a big effort from everyone for us to win the game, but I never expected anything like this. Our first possession on offense, we shot an air ball, and from that point on, it was a display of nearly perfect basketball."

Jones also grabbed 10 rebounds and dished out seven assists for the Raiders. Senior Paul Bernadas came off the bench to nail 17 points with sophomore Dave Hagan adding nine. Junior Adam Farragut and sophomore Frank Arrington tossed in two each.

Sophomore George Hlass played well defensively, pulling down nine rebounds and hitting the nets for four points.

The Raiders played again in the tournament Saturday, but results were not available at press time.

USNS Captain John McDonnell christened

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Christening and launching ceremonies were held Thursday for the United States Naval Ship Captain John McDonnell at Halter Marine, Inc., Moss Point, a division of Trinity Industries, Inc.

The late Capt. McDonnell, a former resident of Diamondhead, in 1978 was named the first commander of the newly formed Naval Oceanography Command comprising over fifty weather and oceanographic commands worldwide, twelve oceanographic ships, and a squadron of specially equipped airplanes.

Mrs. John McDonnell, wife of the late Navy Captain, was the sponsor for the Navy's hydrographic survey ship, said to be the most modern in the world by Maj. Gen. William K. James, USAF, Director, Defense Mapping Agency, principal speaker at the christening ceremonies.

The USNS John McDonnell is 205 feet long with a beam of 45 feet. It will carry two 34-foot hydrographic survey launches and will be operated by a crew of 22 Military Sealift Command personnel plus 11-member survey parties.

The new ship is the first of a new class for the United States Navy, to be called the McDonnell class.

Data gathered from the survey missions will be used to prepare nautical charts essential to the safe navigation of Navy and commercial ships.

The invocation at the christening was given by Rev. Henry McInerney, pastor, Annunciation Church, Kiln.

John Dane, III, president, Trinity Marine Group, Gulfport, owner of Halter Marine, the builder of the USNS Captain John McDonnell, commented on how proud his company was to have been awarded the contract to build the vessel and others for the military.

The military supervisor for the construction of the new ship was Capt. R. Bruce Woodruff, USN, supervisor of shipbuilding, Pascagoula.

Rear Adm. Geoffrey L. Koehr, USN, commander, Naval Oceanography Command, John C. Stennis Space Center, spoke on the Navy life and many of the accomplishments of Capt. McDonnell during his lengthy military career.

Capt. McDonnell is survived by his wife, Mrs. John McDonnell, of Diamondhead; sons, Daniel E. McDonnell, of Niantic, Connecticut; Lt. David C. McDonnell, USN, of Monterey, California; daughters, Lt. Cmdr. Jeanne McDonnell Johnson, of Norfolk, Virginia; and Shelia McDonnell, of Diamondhead, and four grandchildren.

Daughter Jeanne was the matron of honor and daughter Shelia was the maid of honor for the ship's christening.

Capt. McDonnell, in addition to his Navy command, was active in this community. He was very active in the Hancock County Jail Task Force which helped pass a bond issue to construct the modern Criminal Justice Facility. The bond issue had previously been defeated by the electorate.

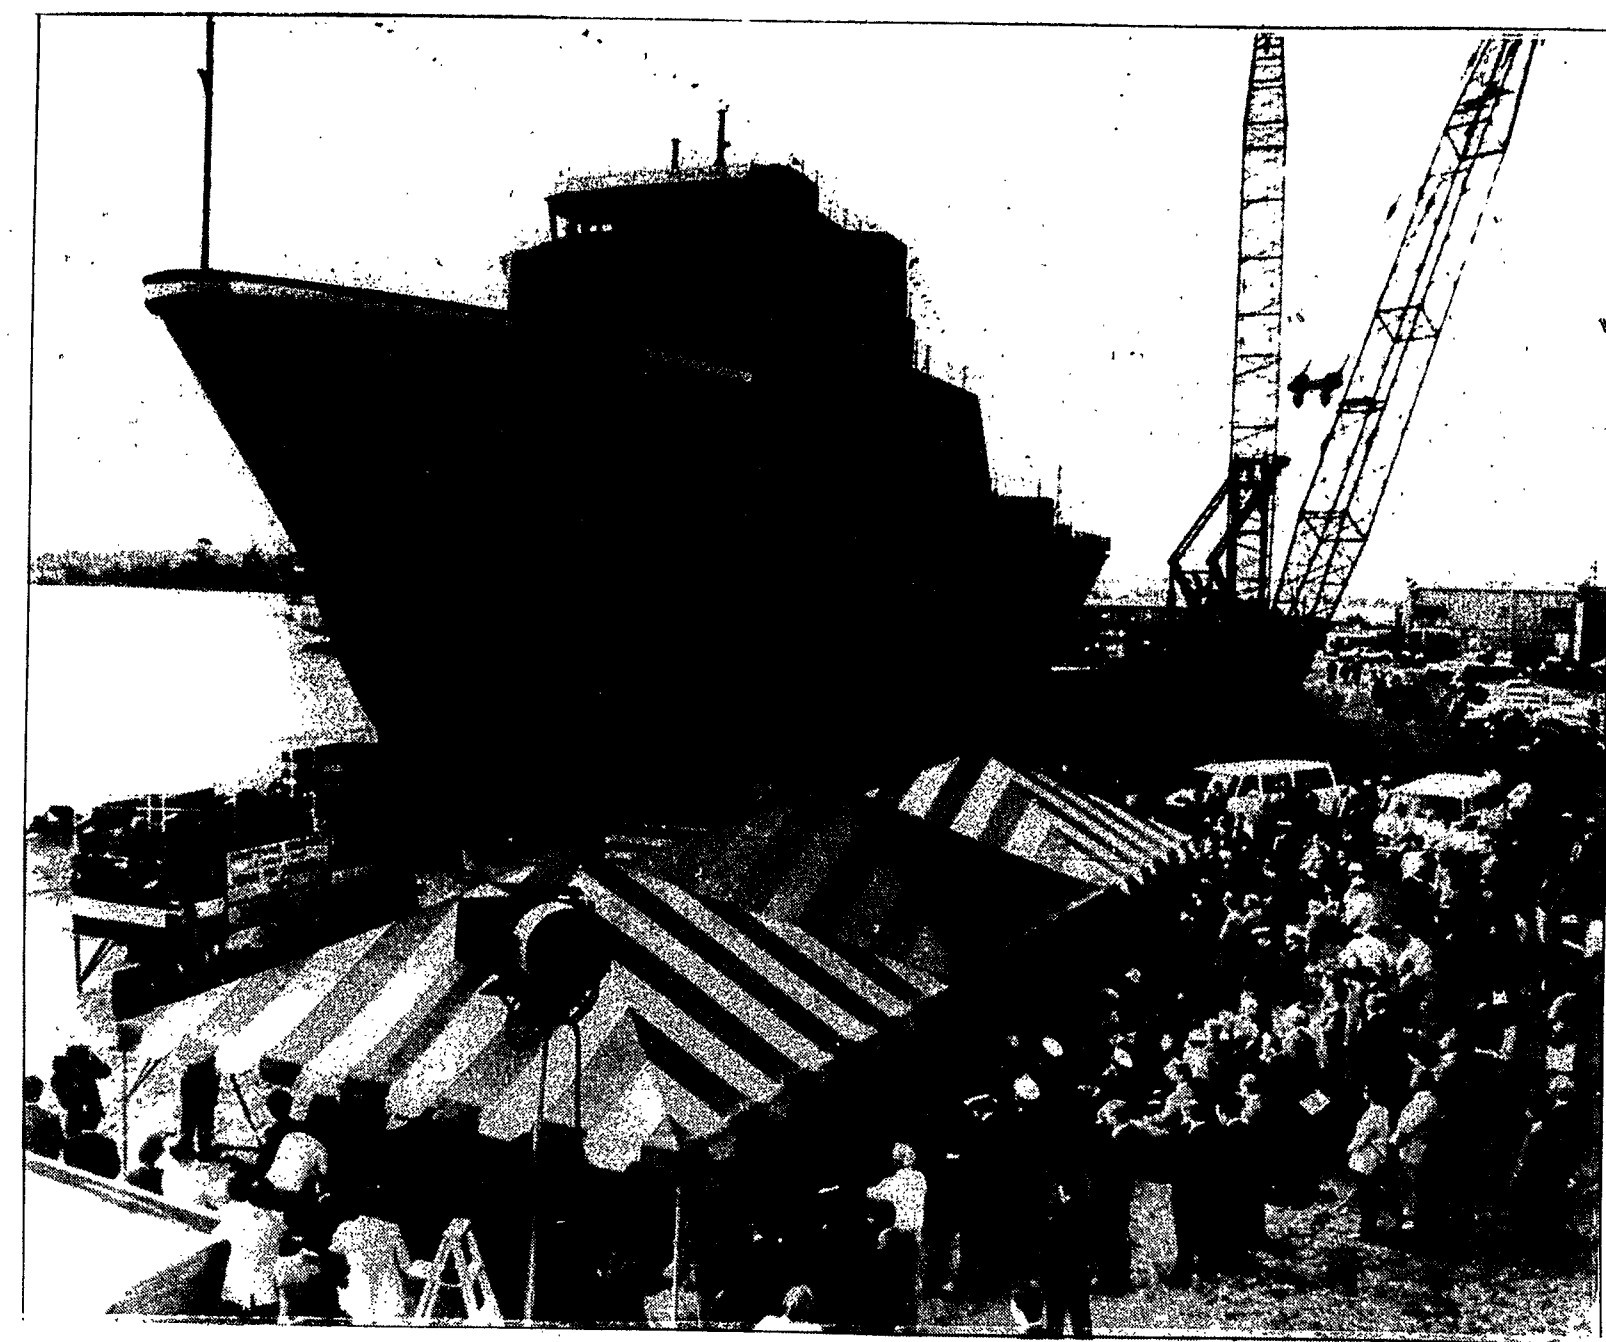

Capt. McDonnell was born in Parsons, Kansas and grew up in Kansas City, Missouri and attended Rockhurst High School.

After graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1955, where he played center on the basketball team, he saw amphibious duty on the USS Fremont, and the USS Klempeter.

He attended submarine school in 1958, followed by tours on the USS Barbero, USS Growler, USS Greenfish, USS Bluejack, and the USS Dolphin.

Capt. McDonnell launched two historic missiles while Guided Missile Officer on the Barbero, the world's first official mail missile, and the one-thousandth Regulus missile launch. A commanding officer of the Dolphin, he established five world records associated with operating at deep submergence depths.

He received a master's degree in Oceanography and Meteorology at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif. where he was first in his class, and graduated from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. In 1977, he assumed command of the Naval Oceanography Office and oversaw its move from Washington, D.C. area to its present location at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

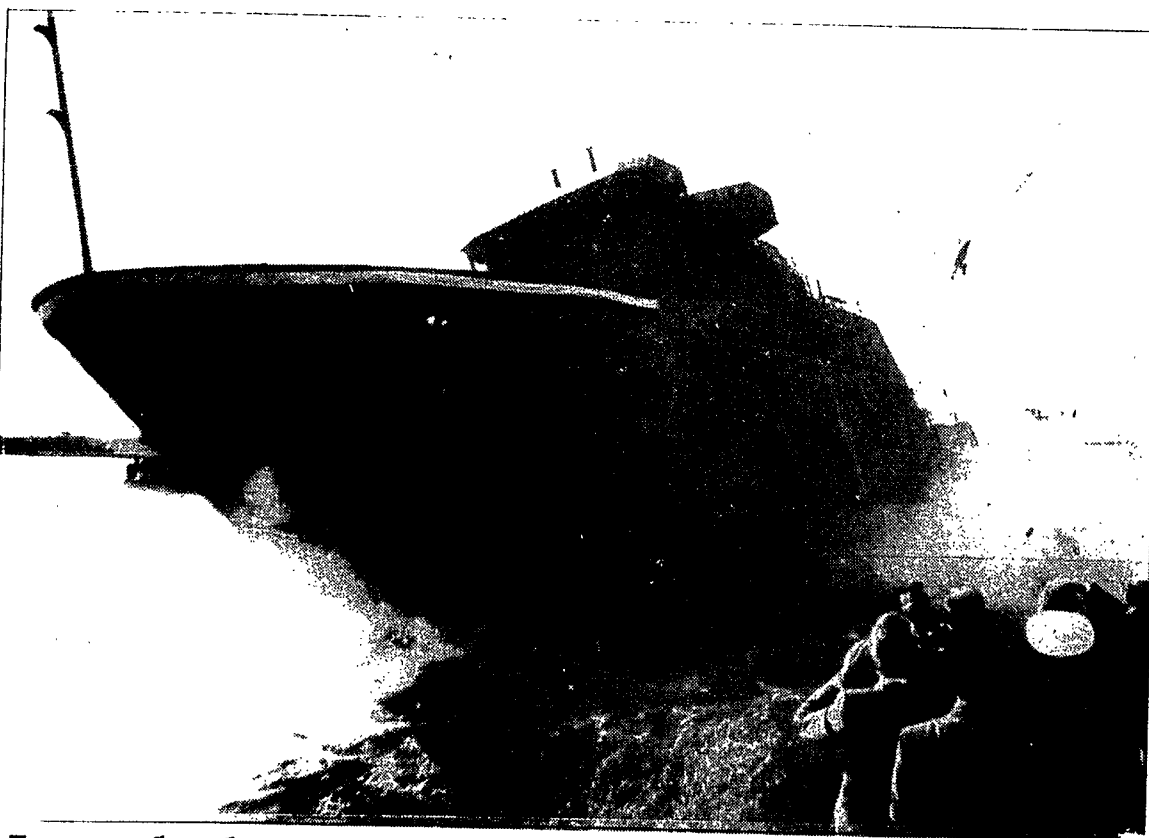

Christening ceremonies

An overflow crowd was on hand Thursday for the launching of the USNS Captain John McDonnell at Halter Marine's Moss Point facility. The most modern Oceanography Research Ship was named after the late Captain McDonnell, former resident of Diamondhead and the first commander of the United States Naval Oceanography Command. (Echo staff photo by Randy Ponder).

His military decorations include the Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit, and the Meritorious Service Medal.

Captain McDonnell retired from the Navy in 1981 and became plant engineer for Global Associates at the Michoud test facility in New Orleans, he died in 1984.

Launched

The U.S. Naval Ship Captain John McDonnell is launched at Halter Marine, Inc., Moss Point Thursday after Christening ceremonies. Mrs. John McDonnell, wife of the late Capt. McDonnell, was the ship's sponsor; matron of honor was his daughter, Lt. Cmdr. Jeanne McDonnell Johnson, USN; maid of honor was his daughter, Ms. Shelia McDonnell. Eternity has to be

There have been debates about afterlife ever since the first humans began to argue about where life came from and where it is going to lead us eventually.

While many arguments run deep philosophically and theologically, the most potent and revealing reasons seem to be our utter restlessness and incompleteness with our allotted time and space as we experience them here.

In light of the intense longings of our minds and hearts, it is difficult to understand how there can be a serious discussion about whether eternity is or is not.

Plainly, simply, eternity has to be, because, if it were not, we would not have nearly enough time to learn, to employ, to complete and to experience the joy and fulfillment of all the wondrous things which life offers us.

How could the very limited boundaries of time seal our fate forever when our minds and hearts have yearnings and curiosities which far exceed any constraints which the finite ticks of time could ever be able to put on them?

Indeed, our yearnings burst the mind-boggling vastness of space and leap beyond ad infinitum.

Eternity has to be, because running counter to our most noble inspirations and aspirations is the ever-present problem of evil.

It would be obscene for evil of any species to be victorious over the peoples of the earth, so that the world would become an increasingly more hostile and alien place in which to live.

How can eternity not be when aging humans are just beginning to mature in mind, emotions and spirit, barely starting to mellow out in their relations with other humans, and scarcely rounding out the numerous goals which they have set for themselves?

It would be unthinkable for earthly death to close out our life's journey—a journey which makes no sense to us rational creatures unless it has further hope, development, rewards, fulfillment and, yes, the sure promise of indefinite continuation into eternity once time is no more.

Eternity has to be, for our human love in all its depth, feeling, power and beauty has an unlimited potential which cries out for steady, never-ending growth, not to mention the assurance that it will last beyond the twelfth of never.

To be cut short by death would be the cruelest irony, the harshest, most teasing hoax which could ever be played on us hapless human beings.

Why would we be invested with all our marvelous capabilities if they were only going to be frustrated at the end of time?

What cruel cosmic joker could be so powerful and so evil at the same time that he would condemn all us humans to a tantalizing taste of life and love doomed to death and despair?

To what end should we possess a love which reaches literally beyond the stars, fulfills all which is human and gropes frantically for what it believes is the Divine Spark which started the whole phenomenon, if that love is to come to a sudden end?

Eternity has to be, if we are going to find any rhyme or reason in the toils, sufferings and travails of this present life. Numerous human problems,

Local Jewish families celebrate 'Feast of Lights'

BY TRACI BONNEY

The local Jewish community is in the midst of a very special festival, Chanukah.

The Jewish community in Hancock County is moderate in size and made up mostly of Reformed Jews, according to Diamondhead resident Lois Abrams, who said services are held in the Diamondhead Community Center bridge room every Friday at 7 p.m.

The festival of Chanukah starts, Abrams said, on the eve of December 11, when the family gathers around the dinner table and a shamash, or "servant," candle is lit. This shamash then lights the first of the eight Chanukah candles.

"At the dinner table gifts are exchanged. The children usually get Chanukah gelt (money) and maybe a dreidel (top) to enjoy after the meal," Abrams explained. "Then, for eight nights a candle is added to the Menorah (the candle holder) until all eight nights (the Menorah then holding eight candles) have passed. For each candle the children receive gifts."

Why such an elaborate festival? Abrams said the answer is found in the story of Judah Maccabee.

In the year 165 BCE (Before Common Era, equivalent to BC, or Before Christ) lived Mattathias Maccabee, Judah's father, and Mattathias' five sons. These men refused to obey a Syrian order to worship the Greek god Zeus, the worship of whom had been brought into Syria with Alexander the Great, the predecessor of King Antiochus IV.

Mattathias had even killed a fellow Jew who began to take sacrifices to Zeus, as well as destroying the Syrian troops in the small town of Modi'in.

Antiochus decided to destroy all the people of Judea, and sent a large army with instructions to kill every Jewish man; woman and child. Though the Syrians outnumbered the Israelites, Judah Maccabee and his fighters won two battles that routed the Syrians.

To celebrate the victory, the Jewish people reconsecrated the Temple in Jerusalem. The people of Jerusalem lit bright lights in front of their homes and decided to mark their deliverance with an annual eight day festival called "The Feast of Lights" or Chanukah, also known as "The Feast of Dedication."

Abrams said, "A legend has grown up, but is not confirmed, that there was only enough oil in the Temple to burn one night, yet it burned eight nights—a God-sent miracle!"

"This version of the reason for eight nights is not found in any writings until the first century CE (Common Era, equal to AD). It is in the Apocrypha, not in the (Protestant) Bible."

She added that special foods help the Jewish people to recall the victory of the Maccabees.

For Chanukah (which can also be spelled Hanukkah), potato latkes (pancakes) are served. The Book of Maccabees with the story of Chanukah is read to the children; special prayers of rejoicing are sung.

questions and mysteries, which defy all efforts at solutions and answers, scream for a forum and an authority which transcend everything available here.

It is most obvious to me that eternity has to be. Otherwise, why would I have this over-

Otherwise, why would I and all the people around me have this deep yearning for Someone greater, more powerful, kinder and more loving than all of us combined?

USM-Gulf Park's toy library features adapted toys for handicapped children

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The brightly colored animated playthings appear at first glance as any others found on the toy shelf.

Closer inspection will reveal a switch connector—which enables a child with physical handicaps to make a bell ring or a fireman climb a ladder, with a nod of the head or stroke of the hand.

A lending library of these adapted toys recently opened at The University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park campus in Long Beach. The collection is the only one of its kind between Houston, Texas and Atlanta, Ga.

It represents a dream come true and three years of work on the part of Dr. Sara Jackson, assistant professor of special education, who secured funding for the toy library.

"Play is critical for the development of all children," she said, "but, it has not been emphasized enough for handicapped children."

The concept of an adapted toy lending library was developed in Sweden, where concerned parents of handicapped children opened the first "Lekotek" (play library) in Stockholm in 1963.

Their theory was early intervention using strategic play techniques enhances a handicapped child's learning capacity. The program's success story quickly spread as other Lekoteks opened across Europe and into the United States.

Toys are chosen to meet the developmental level of the child, and they become the tools of learning.

"We've found that there are over 800 families on the (Mississippi) Gulf Coast who could utilize our services," said Jackson, who introduced Bay St. Louis and Waveland families to the program at North Bay Elementary Tuesday.

"The program is free for all handicapped children from birth to age 6 in the three coastal counties (Hancock, Harrison and Jackson)," said the Bay St. Louis resident.

The Toy Library Coast (TLC) facility was donated by USM. A $43,000 Hasbro Children's Foundation grant purchased a large stock of specially designed toys and will fund toy library play teacher Lois Gore's salary for a year.

Gore will work with handicapped children and their parents, teaching them how to use the toys at the library and checking the toys out for home use.

Jackson emphasized "home use," stressing the importance of interaction with the handicapped child's siblings and parents during the play therapy.

The grant covers operation of the library for one year, and Jackson is seeking local support for the project so that it may continue.

The Bay St. Louis Rotary Club earmarked proceeds from an upcoming fundraiser for the library, in hopes that other civic organizations will follow suit.

Jackson envisions a "traveling toy library" as a goal, so that children in rural areas may be reached.

The toy library will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, from noon to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to noon on Fridays and on the first Saturday of each month.

For more information, call Gore at 867-2636.

Miller-Rainey

The Friendship Oak in Long Beach was the setting for the November 24 wedding of Brenda Gail Rainey of Mesquite, Texas, and Frank Joseph Miller Jr. of Mesquite, Texas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Russell of Waveland. The groom is the son of Judy and Frank Miller Sr. of Bay Side Park.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin with a sweetheart neckline and scooped back. The fitted, princess-waist bodice and full-puffed upper sleeves with fitted, tapered lower sleeves were embellished with 4mm pearls. The sleeves and back waist were further accented with white satin bows.

The full circular skirt, featuring multiple layers of illusion tulle, was accented with diamond dust. The hem was edged with silver thread and narrow white satin ribbon.

She wore a veil of illusion, gathered and pouffed around a base of three rows of pearls on a shaped band with a single teardrop pearl at the center forehead. The veil was accented with flower and pearl sprays.

Linda George was the maid of honor. Angelia Miller was the bridesmaid.

The ring bearer was M.S. George.

Best man was Steve Miller. Richard Santiago was the usher.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Diamondhead Country Club.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner the eve of the wedding at their home.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK JOSEPH MILLER JR.

The couple is making their home in Mesquite, Texas.

Elgin-Watson

Trinity Presbyterian Church in Baton Rouge, La., was the setting for the August 11 wedding of Jeanine Watson to Kirk Elgin.

The bride, formerly of Bay St. Louis, is the daughter of James Watson of Bay St. Louis and the late Judy Taillac Watson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white bridal taffeta, featuring a Victorian neckline, long sleeves and fitted basque waist, highlighted by handmade lace accented with pearls and sequins. The full skirt was accented with matching border lace and appliques and continued into a cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of white illusion lace was attached to a band of Chantilly lace and pearls adorned with a pouf.

The bride carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums with iridescent ribbon trimmed with pearls and sequins.

Barbara Fritz was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Shelly Relan, Minette Elgin, Jannie Killen, J'londa Ban and Connie Bergeron.

Flower girls were Tiffany McGinnis and Meghan Higginbotham.

Best man was Shawn McGinnis. Groomsmen were Greg Richardson, Jeff Elgin, Keith Ashford, and Robert Fowler.

A reception followed the evening ceremony.

The couple is residing in Baton Rouge, La.

Pitalo-Alliston

Our Lady of the Gulf Church was the setting for the November 3 wedding of Catherine Ann Alliston and David Charles Pitalo of Bay St. Louis. Father Cuddy officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woody Alliston of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pitalo of Bay St. Louis.

Music was provided by soloist Sandy Rhodes and organist Gayle Carr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin and re-embroidered rascel lace. The bodice was overlaid with lace and embroidered with seed pearls and iridescents. The Queen Anne neckline was marked with a Cameo lace insert and the keyhole back was adorned with strands of pearls. The full skirt and attached chapel train featured cut-out re-embroidered lace.

She wore a tiara headpiece with attached illusion pouf and tiered waist-length veil.

The bride carried a traditional cascade bouquet of bridal white roses and stephanotis, accented with baby's breath and ming fern.

Amy Goscinski was maid of honor, and Lisa Richard was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were April Phelps, Cindy Pitalo and Amy Alliston.

The attendants wore gowns of plum iridescent taffeta with sweetheart necklines, ballgown puffed sleeves, fitted dropped waists and full skirts with high-low hemlines.

They carried clutch bouquets of white roses, astilbe, wax flowers and ming fern with baby's breath.

Courtney Pitalo was flower girl.

Best man was Donald Pitalo. Ushers were Jeff

MR. AND MRS. DAVID PITALO

Alliston and Allen Alliston.

Groomsmen were Mike Ladner, Tom Walton, Rob Compretta and Mark Logan.

A reception followed the ceremony at the civic center.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner the eve of the wedding at Bud's Catfish House.

The couple is making their home in Bay St. Louis.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Hancock Women's Club

The Hancock Women's Club met Thursday, Dec. 13 at the Quality Inn in Diamondhead for its Christmas party and luncheon. Amelia Terrebone, Elva Buran and Judith Stevens were guests.

The members agreed unanimously to donate $200 to the Pregnancy Crisis Center for purchase of baby clothes and supplies for women having babies during the Christmas season. A representative of the center will speak at the club's next meeting.

Judith Stevens, daughter of club member Theda Fischer, entertained the group by leading a sing-along of Christmas songs, accompanied on her electronic "harp." She also sang several solos, much to the delight of her audience. She also assisted with the gift exchange as a substitute Santa.

Door prizes were won by Myrt Flinn, Amelia Terrebone, Ethel Crowley, Clytee Mayfield, Dot Zimmerman, Lois Cripple and Marion Quinlan. The basket of Christmas goodies, raffled off as the club's money raiser for Christmas giving, was won by Dot Zimmerman.

The Christmas party for the children who attend the Child Development Center, corner Third and Washington streets, Bay St. Louis, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 19.

Besides those purchased by the club, Kmart donated a number of toys needed, and each child will receive a gift. Bob Hubbard has volunteered to be Santa Claus for this event. Cookies and ice cream will be served, the latter being donated by Eva Davis of the Olde Tyme Sandwich Shop in Waveland.

There will be no Fun and Games Day this month. The next meeting will be Jan. 10 at the Waveland Library.

HEALTH CARE

"Borderline Medicine," hosted by Walter Cronkite, explores the current crisis in American health care and considers Canada's 20-year experience with national health insurance.

The one-hour program airing at 10 p.m., Monday, Dec. 17, on Mississippi ETV, features profiles of American and Canadian patients who have similar medical problems, but vastly different experiences with their health care systems. Health policy experts from both sides of the border speak about the merits, liabilities and tradeoffs that are part of both countries' health care systems.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By H.
Randall Smith

Colorful lights and striking ornaments adorning majestic Christmas trees, packages lovingly wrapped with pretty paper and ribbons, cheerful carols of old sung by choirs, savory aromas emanating from kitchens, congregation of family members and the anxious awaiting of Christmas Day by bright-eyed children all indicate that Christmas is upon us once again.

While incorporating the Christmas cheer in your home this year, do not forget to decorate with poinsettias.

During the holidays, poinsettias can be used as needed for decorative effects, but when possible the plants should be placed in the sunniest part of the home. It is essential that poinsettias receive several hours of natural sunlight from a nearby window.

However, when poinsettias are placed close to a window, be sure to avoid letting the bracts (leaves of the flower) or leaves touch cold window panes since this could cause damage.

While growing poinsettias in the home, water sparingly, and remember that drastic changes in growing conditions could result in leaf drop. Therefore, it is important to simulate a similar environment (temperature, humidity and air movement) that the poinsettias were originally grown in.

Most poinsettias have been grown in greenhouses at day temperatures of 70-72 degrees F and night temperatures of about 60 degrees F. Therefore, attempt to maintain similar temperatures in your home.

Poinsettias are also grown at high humidities which do not occur in most homes and offices. To compensate for low humidities, place the plant in a drain pan and allow the water to accumulate in the bottom of the tray.

As the water evaporates from the tray, the humidity is increased around the plant. Be sure to keep the water level just below the bottom of the pot to avoid soggy soil and root rot. It may be necessary to place small rocks at the bottom of the tray to elevate the container.

Poinsettias also do not tolerate sudden temperature changes or drafty locations. So, be sure to keep them away from radiators, air vents and gas heaters.

Plants purchased this Christmas can be kept and made to flower the following Christmas if certain cultural conditions are provided. Some varieties of poinsettias will begin to fade and wither after several weeks. When this occurs, allow the soil in the pot to dry, but not to the point that the entire stem shrivels. Leave the plant in a warm area of the house as it becomes semi-dormant.

As soon as the danger of frost has passed, the plant can be repotted and placed outside. Poinsettias planted outside should be removed from the pot and placed in a sunny location generally on the southern or southeastern side of the building.

Flower beds that are to contain the poinsettias should be moist, fertile and have good drainage. Of course, the plants can be repotted to a larger container and placed on a patio or deck instead of being planted in the landscape. These plants should be cut back to a height of three to five inches above the soil line before new growth begins in the spring.

Poinsettias are heavy feeders and should be fertilized every 14 days with a complete fertilizer. The fertilizer solution can be accomplished by mixing one tablespoon of complete fertilizer in a quart of water. One cup should be used each time you fertilize.

During the hot, dry months of June, July and August, the plants should be kept moist. Within two weeks after planting new growth should appear, and when this growth reaches three to five inches, begin pinching the tip out to encourage multiple branching and terminal flowers. Do not continue this practice after August 15.

As the danger of frost approaches, move the plant indoors to an area of maximum light and minimum night temperature of 60 F. Of course, this date might not apply to the Coast area.

Poinsettia is a photoperiodic plant and responds to the length of day and night. Remember, flower bud initiation takes place when the night length is 12 hours and the temperatures are in the 60's. In the case of the poinsettia, this is during the Autumn.

Therefore from Sept. 15, until blooming, protect the plant from stray light after sundown. The smallest amount of light could cause the plant not to flower. If poinsettias must be grown in a room in which the light must be turned on at night then cover the plants with a dark material or move them to a darkened room each night. A cardboard box with no cracks in it may be used. If all the cultural practices are followed by late November the bracts (flower leaves) should begin to color and the poinsettia should be in full bloom and color by Christmas.

When purchasing a poinsettia, check the maturity of the plant. The flower part of the poinsettia is actually a tiny yellow structure in the center of the bracts.

By the way folks, the bracts with their pink, white and red colors are actually what you observe when looking at a poinsettia. The actual flower is rather inconspicuous.

Anyway, the mature flower will be slightly swollen with the cup showing nectar. Never purchase plants which have flowers that have dropped from the plants.

Poinsettias can also be used as a cut flower in floral arrangements. To use them as such, make a clean cut at the desired length, pass the cut end through a flame to stop the flow of sap. Singe the cut end, but do not burn it.

Place the entire cut specimen in a tub of cold tap water for a couple of hours before placing the poinsettia stem in an arrangement. Change the water daily.

Until we meet again, this is Randy Smith saying, despite the commercialism

Poinsettias and holiday cheer and hustle and bustle of Christmas, take time to remember the true meaning behind this great holiday.

So, from Ethel, Darlene, Kathy and myself to you and yours, have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

GARDEN TIPS

• The fall and winter are good times to plant fruit trees, bushes and vines. Bare-root plants should be planted during the winter months. Remember, root growth will continue until the temperature reaches about 45 degrees F.

• This is a good time to take soil and nematode samples for the garden and home orchard.

• Do not prune fruit trees, bushes or vines at this time or they may suffer more winter damage in January. Late winter is the best time to prune.

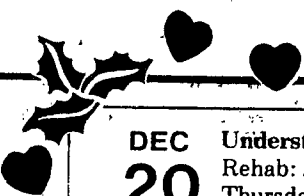

• Heavy infestations of

Gardening presents gift ideas

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Weekends and evenings for the next couple of weeks may be spent shopping for Christmas gifts for family members and friends.

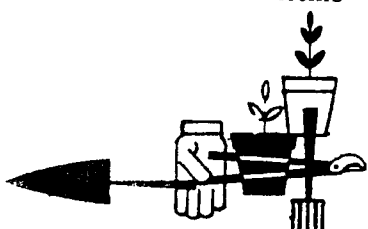

Without exception there is someone on your shopping list who has an interest in gardening, plants and yard care. Why not utilize the opportunity that Christmas presents to give a gardening-related gift?

You can find all kinds of gardening gift items in your local community without having to travel to a crowded shopping mall.

If you're headed for the mall, take time to visit one of the bookstores which is sure to have a broad selection of gardening books and a range of prices.

Or, visit your local building supply or hardware store, the co-op, farm equipment dealer, garden center and florist. There are many places to look for gifts for a gardening enthusiast.

With the choice of items so broad, it may help to narrow the possibilities by setting a price limit or by considering the person's special likes such as flower arranging or indoor plants.

You might consider giving something that you really want yourself so that it will be around for you to use or borrow.

Some relatively small items to consider are: a rain gauge, hose guides for placing at corners and other strategic places to prevent damage to plants, work gloves, pruning shears, soil thermometer, lawn rake, tool holder for the utility building, tool belt or carry tote for holding a trowel, labels, tying cord, knife and other small easily misplaced items.

For the bird lover consider giving a bird feeder or book on bird identification. Most gardeners have mixed feelings about birds; those that sing and look pretty are just great while those that peck at the ripening fruit and tomatoes are a real nuisance.

Since purple martins are so popular in the state because of the insects they eat, how about a martin house? While hummingbirds won't be around for another five months or so a hummingbird feeder makes an excellent gift.

A live animal trap might be appreciated by someone who is constantly troubled by squirrels or opossums. (Just hope the family cat learns to stay out of the trap and the recipient has some lawful way of relocating those unwanted animals.)

A neighbor of mine humanely trapped and relocated 20 opossums in her yard in one year, or maybe she caught the same opossum 20 times.

If you have a relatively small, fenced yard, and know someone with a dog or someone who is getting a new puppy for Christmas, how about a dog-waste clean-up system as a related gift item? It's like a mini-septic tank system with special enzymes for breaking down doggy waste. You still have to get the waste to the receptacle, however.

Yard lighting is on a popularity upswing, which is probably due to the development of lower priced systems. Consider giving a lighting system or a single solar-powered unit.

Since there is no wiring with the solar-powered units, they can be placed just about anywhere and relocated whenever the need arises. For the more permanent lighting systems visit a lighting fixture store or garden center.

During the summer months, hanging baskets of ferns, impatiens and other flowering plants are frequently used to decorate the outdoor living space. Check out the variety of hooks and brackets available for supporting plants on posts and hanging them from railings. Garden sculpture opens up in Mississippi Gardens

another area of possible gifts. The choices range from small concrete animals to bird baths, fountains and larger items, depending on your budget and likes.

For the flower lover who is forever filling the house with cut flowers, consider a vase or book on flower arranging.

One of the gadgets for re-cutting flower stems under water isn't really practical, since it's easier to place a couple of inches of water in the sink and do the cutting there.

Check out the small and very useful electric and gas engine-powered tools. You'll have a choice of leaf and trash blowers, hedge trimmers and string grass trimmers. Some items such as small sprayers are even available with rechargeable batteries.

These are just a few of the many items to consider as gifts for the gardeners on your shopping list. As you look around you'll find many more.

A gift certificate not only makes an excellent gift that allows recipients to pick out something they really want or need, but it also gives you the opportunity to control how much you spend.

San Jose scale and white peach scale insects can severely damage peach and plum trees. These insects can be controlled with dormant oil sprays after all the leaves are off the trees and before buds begin to swell in late winter or early spring.

Chilling hours (total hours accumulated between 32 and 45° F) must be considered when selecting peach or plum varieties. Only those varieties with a low requirement (less than 45° hours) should be considered for south Mississippi.

Do not plant fruit trees in low, frost-prone areas, because an unexpected freeze can kill the early spring blooms.

Pear trees are available in standard, semidwarf and dwarf sizes. Standard trees grow 15 to 25 feet tall, semidwarf trees reach a height of 10 to 15 feet and dwarf trees 8 to 10 feet tall. Call for a copy of the publication entitled "Recommended Fruit and Nut Varieties For Mississippi."

Remember some pear varieties are self-pollinating and some are not. The Orient and Kieffer pears are partially self-pollinating.

Muscadine varieties, Magnolia, Sterling, Doreen, Noble, Regale, Tarheel, Higgins, Carlos and Summit can be planted in south Mississippi.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

Whatever sort of Christmas Feast you're planning, large or small or in-between, according to the size of the gathering, there's a "just-the-right-size" offering for you at our area supermarkets.

For the smaller family group, the cook might choose to substitute a turkey breast for the traditional bird. And, for those bent upon turkey as the piece de resistance of the holiday meal, there's a bird for every taste and no. 1 to a "Little Butterballs" (to a 10 lbs. average) to larger Butterballs, with offerings also of roasted turkeys, self-basting turkeys, large turkeys and so on. And, for those who are also available, are ducklings and hens, all at good prices.

If you opt for a noble bird, instead, there are choices in plain tip roasts, ranging from 10 or 12 pounds to 15 or 16 pounds. These are of the round type, and are boneless sirloins and round roasts. And, for those who prefer a pig section, there's a choice in half fresh pork, ham, or ham roasts, also available in half boneless, and sliced quarter ham, all in good supply.

It's a fun, not-to-be-missed to cook up a ham at the Bakery department of the turkey or ham roasts. It's also cooked in the bakery department of the ham and ham roasts.

If you're looking for a sprinkling of holiday cheer, as I've said before, I can't do just what you need for the turkey, but I can do what the whole house smells so good.

For the accompanying side dishes, you need out the festive ones, like the ailes and the ham, for bargains in the produce department. For example, the ham is offered at good prices, and for it's a little extra to have rice on the table.

As a matter of fact, I usually have a lot of cooked rice in the freezer, and the fridge, and the ham, or for meal, and the ham, or for meal, and the ham, or for meal.

arrive, or when I wish to ask friends over for a meal on the spur of the moment.

Rice rounds out a meal so well, and tastily, and combines so well with other foods; and it's a great stretcher for smaller amounts of meat or chicken or fish, along with vegetable seasonings such as bell pepper and onion and celery and such.

Potatoes, both white and sweet varieties, are a bargain at area supermarkets just now. Here's a tasty way to cook those ever-so-sweet Louisiana yams in the markets:

OLD-TIME WHIPPED YAMS
4 medium yams (2 lbs.)
Boiling water to cover
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
3/4 tsp. salt
1/16 tsp. ground cloves
1/4 cup sugar
1 Tbsp. orange rind, grated
1/2 tsp. lemon rind, grated
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine, melted

1 egg, well beaten
1/4 cup heavy cream
1/2 cup pecans, chopped
2 Tbsp. light brown sugar
Preheat the oven to 450 degrees. Cook whole yams in boiling water 20 to 30 minutes, until tender, then slip skins off and mash smooth. Add remaining ingredients, except sugar, and beat until fluffy. Place mixture in 1-quart buttered casserole, brush with butter and sprinkle with brown sugar.

Bake for 35 minutes, or until brown. You may top with marshmallows the last few minutes of cooking. (Six to eight servings)

If you want an extra touch, you may wish to scoop out oranges, pile the yam mixture into the shells, and top with the marshmallows and bake.—From Pirate's Pantry by the Junior League of Lake Charles, La., treasured recipes of Southwest Louisiana.

From the same cookbook comes this easy-easy way with yams:

CAJUN BAKED YAMS
Yams or sweet potatoes
Butter

Scrub potatoes and dry well. Bake on cookie sheet at 350 degrees, turning every 30 minutes, until very soft. Test for doneness by gently squeezing. Serve in shell or peeled, with butter.

And, peel the yams, or use leftover baked yams; slice them a half-inch thick, and saute in a little butter or margarine. Drain, and sprinkle with granulated sugar. And, in true Cajun style, serve with gumbo! If you prefer, you may fry the yam slices in two inches of hot cooking oil before draining and sugaring.

I like to saute or fry the yams until quite blackened and crusty on each side, incidentally.

Still in the potato patch: Russett potatoes are a very good buy. And, if you've been shunning the humble spud because you're watching your weight or for some other reason, it's time you rediscovered the potato! Low in calories, nutritious, and a help to the food budget!

I like to top a baked potato with just about anything in the fridge, from leftover chili or stew to sour cream or herb-accented lo-fat yogurt, according to my mood and what's on hand! And, I like to spill snappy cheese sauce and salsa and bacon bits over all—a meal in itself!

With cold baked or boiled potatoes on hand in the refrigerator, you can quickly produce an impromptu meal, adding leftover ham or turkey or roast beef, and a quickly made green salad—ready to welcome drop-in guests during the holidays.

Check out the other specials at the stores, especially those just-out-of-Mother-Earth fresh turnip greens and mustard greens, ready for cooking and devouring along with corn dodgers or cornbread, a longtime Southern meal treat.

Apples, oranges, mandarins and grapefruit are also in good supply, along with grapes and pears, yours for the plucking from the produce bins.

the turkey
shuts safely

during the holiday season, it's sure to find its way to the table. Unfortunately, the hectic schedules of the season often start looking for shortcuts.

One tempting shortcut is to use a microwave oven. While it may not be safe, it's a good idea to handle turkey carefully to prevent the outbreak of food poisoning during this season.

There are some shortcuts you can take without risking the health and welfare of your family. Keep the following tips handy during the holiday season.

Shopping—What type of turkey will meet your needs before you go to the grocery store.

Preparation—Order ahead and pick up one or two days before cooking.

CAUTION: Don't buy a pre-cooked bird or hold any raw bird more than two days with- out cooking.

Preparation—Buy early to get the size you want. Keep it thawing for use.

Thawing—Use the microwave (follow owner's manual) or thaw in cold water in the sink (change water every 30 minutes).

CAUTION: Do not thaw turkey at room temperature.

Washing the bird—Remove giblets and neck and wash the bird inside and out in cool water the day before cooking. Pat dry with a paper towel, season and if desired, coat the skin with oil, margarine or butter.

Cover with plastic or aluminum wrap and refrigerate. Work quickly to avoid keeping the bird at the inappropriate temperature for an unsafe length of time.

Stuffing—Chop and refrigerate perishable ingredients one day ahead. Combine with dry ingredients and stuff the turkey just before putting it into the oven.

CAUTION: Never stuff poultry early to save time. Never stuff a turkey to be microwaved. You cannot be sure of thorough cooking.

A hot, soapy water clean-up—Raw poultry and its juices carry bacteria. Wash hands, utensils, cutting board, counters, sink and anything else that touches the raw bird with hot, soapy water before any other food comes into contact with them.

Cooking—Save time by microwaving or baking your turkey in a commercial oven bag or covered roaster. Cooking the bird and stuffing separately also saves time.

CAUTION: Do not use long-time, low-temperature (under 325 degrees F) cooking methods or the one hour in a hot oven method followed by turning the oven off and leaving the bird overnight.

Do not partially cook one day and try to finish cooking later. All methods are unsafe.

Serving and Leftovers

Time Management—Prepare several small plates of food ahead. Take them from the oven or refrigerator as needed.

CAUTION: Do not lay a table with perishables before you are ready to eat or replenish service.

ing plates that have been out for some time. Never leave food at room temperature more than two hours.

Leftovers—After dinner, play it safe by removing the stuffing from the bird and refrigerating both. Later before you go to bed, remove the meat from the cold carcass, and store the meat and stuffing in meal-sized portion or shallow containers for later use.

CAUTION: Never leave the turkey out all evening or place in a warm oven for snacking.

A PROVEN SOLUTION TO KIDNEY STONE PROBLEMS!

More than two million people have had kidney stones removed without a scratch.

Lithotripsy is a proven, cost-effective and much less painful alternative to surgical removal of kidney stones, utilizing a special technique to disintegrate the stones.

Slidell Memorial Hospital is proud to announce the availability of a state-of-the-art "bath-less" Lithotripter for management of kidney stones. A series of quick, short waves reduce the stones to sand-sized particles that easily pass through the patient's urine.

The advantages include lower cost, shorter recovery time and better patient tolerance. The "bath-less" technique has the added advantage of an environment that maintains your privacy, as you are not required to be completely unclothed at the time of the procedure. Because it is so efficient, treatment usually requires less than one hour and can be performed on an outpatient basis, allowing you to resume everyday activities shortly after discharge.

If you're already suffering from kidney stones, why suffer a painful recovery from surgery when there is a fast, effective non-surgical alternative. For more information about this exciting procedure, please call 646-0044.

PLANNING AND ZONING COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARING
The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a special public hearing Wednesday, January 2, 1991, 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall following an order of the City Council to make recommendation on the following proposed changes to the Bay St. Louis Zoning Ordinance, being Ordinance No. 220:

(1) Article V shall be amended to add the following Section: Section 507, Water and Bottomlands. All waters and bottomlands within the territorial boundary line of the City and located in either the Bay of St. Louis and its tributaries or the Mississippi Sound shall carry the same zoning as the abutting uplands.

(2) Article VI shall be amended to add the following Section: Section 604.1, Piers, docks, marinas and all activities permitted and authorized by the Mississippi Gaming Control Act of 1990, together with all amendments and revisions thereof.
